The Person I Admire Most

The person I admire most is my English teacher, Peter, who has a great influence on me in all aspects in my life. To begin with, he is such a passionate person that whenever he sees his students, he'll give them a warm hug and ask them how they're doing recently. Moreover, his humorous character makes him easy to get along with. For my part, he's like another father who not only teaches me English but also helps me conquer all the difficulties I encounter in life.

The English classes he teaches are always interesting and informative at the same time. The main teaching material of his class are English news which he selected from a variety of newspapers. By learning the usage of words native speakers use and gaining the information of some major events happening throughout the world enlarges my vocabulary and knowledge in a rather interesting and effective way. Additionally, he'll teach us some classic English songs during Christmas such as Last Christmas. Through singing English songs, our English listening and speaking ability improves. It also creates an atmosphere of love and harmony which relieves our tension from the heavy load of studies. The notes he requires us to take in every class are so useful and important that they are often seen in test papers. All in all, he expands our horizons through global news and improves our English by <sup>using</sup> various approaches.

He has a very keen observation and a friendly personality. Whenever he takes heed of the students who seem to be dead tired by the pressure of examinations, he'll tell some jokes in order to light up their spirits. He genuinely believes that by holding an optimistic attitude towards life, opportunity and the devil's luck may come when one's in need. His inspiring remarks <sup>often</sup> ignites the passion of learning in my heart and motivates me to strive for excellence.

Despite the fact that he has a successful career and lots of fortunes, he remains humble and grateful for what he has. His modest character left me a deep impression and is the reason why I respect him so much

As a teenager, I often find myself facing different challenges and difficulties in life. Not knowing what to do, I always turn to Peter for consult and assistance. He's like a spiritual leader and a mentor who guides me through the valleys of depression and distress. As far as I'm concerned, his unique teaching methods provide me with a way to know the world and helps me make great progresses in English. With his unfailing faith and devotion in teaching, he truly turns a whole new leaf in my life. Needless to say, he's the person I admire most and the one I'll always look up to.
